U.S. stocks end mixed; banks gain, technology down

NEW YORK. Jan 26 (Reuters) - U.S. stocks ended mixed Wednesday as gains in financial services firms, partly due to lower bond yields, were offset by a drop in leading technology companies on concern that their sales growth may be slowing.

The Privacy Pinch

By John C. Dvorak

THE RIGHT TO PRIVACY WILL HELP DEFINE THE next decade for the Internet--whether it thrives anew or gets bound up in needless government interference. I fear the latter, for too many people are confusing right to privacy with simple annoyance.

This has led to something worse: cries for legislation--premature legislation. In an Internet industry that won't stand up to complaints and cannot seem to self-regulate, some I-boneheads are actually inviting government legislation, according to some published reports.

Dell warns earnings will fall short of expectations

By Jerry Mahoney

Austin American-Statesman Staff

Posted: Jan. 27, 2000

Y2K worries and tight supplies of chips slowed Dell Computer Corp. in the fourth quarter, and forced executives Wednesday to warn Wall Street that results will fall short of expectations.
